The keyboard was a mistake

For 150 years, we've been forcing thoughts through our fingertips.

The keyboard wasn't built for humans.

It was built for machines - and we adapted to it.

That era is over.

Voice is our default

It's the only natural way we communicate.

From birth, we don't learn to type.

We learn to speak.

Talking is instinctive. Effortless. Human.

Typing is none of those things.

> Typeless turns your raw, unfiltered voice into beautifully polished writing - in real time.

You speak faster than you type.

You think faster when you speak.

And when you remove the friction, your thoughts flow freely.

You become more creative. More inspired. More fluent in your own ideas.

This isn't a tool. It's a turning point.

The keyboard is a relic.

Your voice is your default.

Typeless lets you liberate it.

> Welcome to the end of typing.
>
> Welcome to Typeless.